INTERNATIONAL ASSOCIATION OF GEODESY
Membership Application / Renewal Form

Individuals engaged in geodesy, can become individual members of the IAG on application and payment of the membership fee. Applications and renewals are submitted to the IAG Secretary General. In specific cases, the Secretary General may consider a full remission of membership fees on application (e.g. retired person). Students are exempt from the membership fee, but they must submit a certificate from their University / College to the IAG Secretary General. The membership period is one year or four years. Membership period of a Student Member is one year.

Benefits of membership include: (i) Reduction in the individual subscription rate to the Journal of Geodesy; (ii) The right to participate in the IAG election process both as a nominator and a nominee; (iii) Upon application, correspondent membership in a Sub-commission or Study Group of choice; (iv) Reduction in the registration fee for IAG meetings.

Members' voluntarily contribution to the IAG Funds are used for travel support for young scientists, to assist in the organization of IAG workshops in developing countries, and to provide annual IAG Best Publication Award for young scientists.
